ABSTRACT

A method of accessing information relating to various commerce assets such as products or services offered at virtual stores participating in a virtual marketplace is disclosed. The commerce assets in each store are related by storepath relationships correlating asset types among related stores. The method uses the storepath relationships to retrieve information about commerce asset types available from a store.